Anyone else saddened by the news? I know I shouldn't be surprised since it's Hollywood, but after five seemingly solid years of marriage, I had hope that these two would "make it".

I always liked Tom Cruise. Some say he's gay but I never get that vibe. Maybe my "Gay-dar" is off. You can always tell the flamers, but if they're in the closet, who knows, I suppose.

I used to think his wife Katie Holmes was kinda plain. But after seeing her play the role of Jacqueline Kennedy in the series, "The Kennedys", I think she's smokin' hot. She just has to wear the right fashions for her face and figure.

I've been a fan of Katie's since Dawson's Creek. It's a shame that she's allowed Tom to kind of kill her career in recent years. I hope her new-found independence treats her well.

I think people should be happy that Katie is getting away from him and the cult of Scientology. She hasn't looked like she was happy in years. Hopefully, she can revive her career and manage to get custody of Suri.

I hope that she will be happier now. From what I understand Scientology is really out there and Tom Cruise is one of it's biggest supporters.

Did anyone see that Katie is putting Suri into a Catholic school? Wow, that sure is different than Scientology isn't it? I think she was just unhappy! She came to her senses and thought, I'm outta here. I don't blame her and I am not surprised.
