That's complete BS on their part. My wife worked in the hotel industry for 5 years and it's a simple fix, especially where most of the attendees are on the same floor and have only one room. If no one is checked in yet, then it's a simple matter of switching room numbers in the computer. Takes all of 5 minutes.

Wayne, I would call the hotel, if you haven't already, and ask nicely for them to accommodate those who have already reserved more than one room since the LSAF has a track record there.
