Subject: Where the hell is that marching band?

I'm sitting in my chair in the LR with the stereo off and hear faint drum and brass sounds like living a few blocks away, as I once did, from a high school athletic field. Is it a car in the parking lot? Can it be I'm finally hearing the neighbors stereo in the quietest apartment I've ever had?

I look out the window, I walk to the walls and then it dawns on me...

I won a pair of interconnects at Ribfest this past weekend and I've been putting hours on them with the CD player on repeat and the amplifiers off. The Subwoofers, however, are getting signal and with the 2nd order filter set about 110 Hz, and with the very low gain set to mesh with the 4Pis, there's more than just low bass coming faintly from them.
