Thanks, it does give the whole louspeaker a less DIY and more professional look. As per some advice here I went for it as I didn't want to forke out all that effort/time and money for an obviously home-made speaker. Now it's more subtle....me freehand?? LOL:) I followed the instructions as per a very helpfull poster here...you!!? With one succesfull run to create the first template you are home free. I then used the same template approach for the port....it has the same dimension height-wise as the horn cut-out.Roland yes GarMan it was you:)
