Wanted to try a chip amp, but a google on "Brian GT" only nets me these discussions.
Thanks in advance, Russellc

Here is the address:http://www.briangt.com/gallery/nigc-kitFunny, but I know you use the Altec A7's, I have my clone with the basic kit driving the 811/806 horns and a carver on the 421's in a reflex cab. The GC sounds darn good as long as you don't overdrive. I still have to complete the super duper GC kit. I have the boards stuffed just hav'nt got around to wiring it up. Then the basic goes on the 421's and the hot rod goes on the horns. Thats my basement listen while I work system. They are so simple and sound good, for all of the non-audiophile buddies who ask for the dirt cheap "good sound". "Hey, what can I get for around a hundred?", You know the type. J.R.
