Subject: Self Testing
Posted by The Noise on Wed, 01 May 2013 21:31:00 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Here's a neat little experiment you can try. Next time you put on a CD, try to identify all of the instruments that are playing. This works best of course if the artist is known for experimenting with different sounds and such. It's a good test to see how well your hearing is doing.

Subject: Re: Self Testing
Posted by Nymeria on Thu, 09 May 2013 16:01:45 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Yes, this is always a good thing to do to develop your ear. Of course, if you don't have a reference of the instruments used, it's hard to check for correctness.

Subject: Re: Self Testing
Posted by audioaudio90 on Fri, 10 May 2013 11:14:21 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

We had to do this for class when I was training. It was definitely a good exercise and most of us kept it up beyond the required homework assignment.

Subject: Re: Self Testing
Posted by Azuri on Mon, 13 May 2013 13:18:48 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Even if you cannot properly identify all the instruments, picking out the different sounds can still be done. I'm sure this is a good experiment to see how detailed your hearing is.