We bought tickets to the AC/DC concert and it was postponed. I'm not sure that I like that Axel Rose is going to be taking the lead with singing for them now. Don't get me wrong, I'm a huge Guns and Roses fan but I'm not sure he will fit with AC/DC. I'm debating getting my money back for this one. What are your thoughts on this?

I saw this and I couldn't believe that he is going to be the lead singer now. I don't think his singing voice will fit very well with the band, but I guess you won't know till you hear it. I think you should keep your tickets and check it out.

The only problem with keeping the tickets is that they were not cheap. Do I really want to spend $300 for two tickets to see a band that might sound horrible? I'm still on the fence with this one. I'm waiting until they announce when they are rescheduling it.

This is just my personal opinion, but I would get rid of the tickets somehow. At this stage, Axel Rose and Steven Tyler would sound good singing together because they both sound like old grandmothers when they sing.

I have always really liked AC/DC and kind of liked G and R, but no.....just no.

I see a clash of the ego's in the not too distant future. Axel may be getting paid bug money to do this, but his ego may end up ticking off Angus.
