Subject: Bagpipe amp
Posted by voyager1 on Sat, 27 Aug 2016 18:00:34 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Just kidding! No amp needed! Usually people are telling me to pipe down - pun intended.

I was just curious to find out if there are any other pipers here?

Subject: Re: Bagpipe amp
Posted by Finn on Wed, 31 Aug 2016 12:55:40 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I love the sound of the bagpipes and I've always wanted to learn how to play. There is a school a few towns away that offers classes, but I feel a little intimidated. How long have you been playing?

Subject: Re: Bagpipe amp
Posted by voyager1 on Fri, 02 Sep 2016 05:00:05 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

If we define "playing" very loosely, it's been about 25 years!

If you enjoy the sound, you should give it a try! I assure you, anyone from little children to adults to senior citizens can play, but everyone is intimidated at the beginning. Your teacher will take it in small steps and soon you'll big making some big noise!

Subject: Re: Bagpipe amp
Posted by Leot55 on Sun, 23 Jul 2017 02:25:46 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Man, you certainly got my attention with the amp remark. I can't play the bagpipes myself, but I like listening to them. I'm from Scottish descent and my grandfather could play them. He used to play at the local Scottish festival each year. Fun times!

My father tried learning and hated it. I thought they were too complicated to learn, even though my wife insists I have the legs for a kilt.

Do you play with a group?