Can anyone tell me about the H.H. Scott S-15 speaker? When they were produced? The specs.? Price?, etc.I just picked up a pair of S-15 speakers and they sound wonderful when connected to my Scott 222C amp., Garrard Lab 80 / Shure M55E, and Scott 370 tuner. I figure that they must be from the early sixties. Also -- if anyone has a problem with the Lab-80 turntable's thrust-bearing (the platter rides on it), there is a solution that can eliminate the bearing completely (and it elimnates a lot of the bearing rumble, too.). This solution should work on other turntables that have a problem thrust-bearing.

See Scott website below. No mention of S-15 speakers, but you might be intersted in the site anyway.

Thank you for the referral to the Scott site. I went there and discovered that the list stops at the S12. I gave the speakers to a family memeber and I will examine them to determine if, in fact, they are S12s.

I don't know any of the specs, but I have a set and they are AWSOME speakers! The tweeters are pretty limited rangewise, but they sound great. I've been tempted to purchase another set of H.H. Scott speaker off of ebay one of these days.- Nick
