

---

Subject: I bought the Mozart Clarinet Concerto for Robert Marcellus, but...

Posted by Bill Epstein on Wed, 14 Feb 2007 10:13:18 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

...the Clarinet Quintet on the "B" side is what I'll play over and over.

---

---

Subject: Re: I bought the Mozart Clarinet Concerto for Robert Marcellus, but...

Posted by Bob Brines on Wed, 14 Feb 2007 12:11:27 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Ah, Yes. The clarinet concerto. This is Mozart's most mature concerto and one I think indicates the direction that he would have gone if he had lived another ten years. Of course, this concerto was not written for the clarinet. It was written for the basset clarinet, a very rare instrument that didn't survive the turn of the century (1800). Indeed, there exists a complete piano sketch of the first movement for the even rarer basset horn in G. Mozart settled for the basset clarinet in A, most likely because the targeted performer, Anton Stadler was touring with this instrument. The basset clarinet goes down to written C instead of the normal E, sounding A. What this means is that all of those low arpeggios that sound contrived on a normal clarinet because of the forced inversions suddenly sound natural and correct when played on the basset clarinet. LeBlanc currently catalogs a basset clarinet, which is their normal professional instrument with an extended foot joint. A few touring pros, Sabine Meyer, for one, have made recordings with this instrument, but the recording that you want to get is the old Christopher Hogwood / Anthony Pay versions, still available on Decca. Pay plays a replica of Stadler's instrument, and the results are astounding. While the concerto is a cerebral and learned, the quintet is just plain fun. The final theme and variations is my favorite. Incidentally, the quintet was also written for Stadler's basset clarinet, but I have never heard a recording on this instrument. Bob

---

---

Subject: Re: Great 'liner notes' Bob

Posted by Bill Epstein on Thu, 15 Feb 2007 22:17:08 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

'ppreciate it. Now I have to find the Hogwood. Really love the Clarinet on vinyl

---