I am wondering what is your favorite position to watch TV. I can't watch TV sitting down. I usually lay down on the sofa. Although my ultimate favorite spot is my bed.

I have my dad's old raggedy recliner. It is nothing to look at, and I have been told by my friends that it is ready for the dumpster, but for me is the best place to watch TV and surf the net.

OK, so I really checked out this post because I thought it was about something else - but, yeah, I sit length-wise on my loveseat with my feet up and my back propped up with pillows.....

Hahaha, I actually am surprised with my dirty mind that I didn't think of that. I actually for some reason thought about football positions, which is strange since I am not a football junkie.

Mmmm positions...

Anyway, I usually just sit down. Since I unfortunately lack a TV in my room, I can't lie down really. I don't really have a problem sitting down though, but I would like to watch TV in bed.

A good thing this is in tower. I must have been asleep as I too first thought about football. I guess it is a sign of being a dinosaur.

OK, if I lay down watching TV too much, I feel like someone in a hospital bed or something. It is OK for a little while, but eventually I have to sit up.

Both topics crossed my mind, but since this is in the tower my first guess was that this was about football or something like that. I didn't think it would be about TV at all.

I used to like to watch TV lying down, but now it makes me too tired. I prefer to sit in a comfortable chair. Couches aren't bad, but even they make me too tempted to go to sleep.
