
Subject: Not skipping the commercials
Posted by mixinlady on Mon, 16 Jul 2012 19:47:40 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Is there anybody here who actually listens to the commercials on their favorite radio station, either out of not wanting to flip through the channels, or out of being a devoted supporter of the station?

Subject: Re: Not skipping the commercials
Posted by TurnItUp on Thu, 19 Jul 2012 03:45:37 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I do not listen to the commercials unless I am in the kitchen with the radio on. For some reason, that radio is extremely difficult to tune so I will leave it alone then. Any other time I change the channel.

Subject: Re: Not skipping the commercials
Posted by Nymeria on Thu, 26 Jul 2012 14:34:49 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I flip through the stations if commercials come on. The problem is that most of the stations have commercials at about the same time, so 9 times out of 10 I end up back where I started.

Subject: Re: Not skipping the commercials
Posted by Chicken on Fri, 27 Jul 2012 17:22:37 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Yes, I think they do that on purpose, Nymeria. Luckily, I can usually find one station that is offset just enough to avoid most commercial breaks.

Subject: Re: Not skipping the commercials
Posted by TurnItUp on Sat, 28 Jul 2012 17:50:39 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I change stations when the commercials come on, and then if I am on Pandora or something I always click the skip button too. I hate it when you change the station only to run into nothing but commercials on every other station.

Subject: Re: Not skipping the commercials
Posted by Nymeria on Fri, 05 Oct 2012 19:12:26 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

mixinlady wrote on Mon, 16 July 2012 14:47Is there anybody here who actually listens to the commercials on their favorite radio station, either out of not wanting to flip through the channels, or out of being a devoted supporter of the station?

How would listening to the commercials help the station, anyway? As long as you are listening to the station most of the time, does flipping away during commercial breaks really matter?
