My flat screen TV just recently died so I'm looking for a replacement. I found a Plasma TV for sale but I'm unsure if it has HDMI hookups. I really don't want to downgrade if this is the case. Can someone help me decide?

Any more information on the TV? It should tell you if it has what you are looking for. If not, ask someone at the store. They should know. Every TV is different but I would think it would have those.

Almost every other TV has a HDMI port nowadays. What happened to your TV and have you found out if you can use the warranty? Again, it will be better if you can physically check out the TV on your own.
