This venue is said to have the best acoustics for a venue of that size. Time and again I hear music from, and reviews about, the Beacon that is just top shelf. If you ever get a chance, catch a concert at the Beacon, you probably won't be disappointing.

In Tulsa, the best venue like that is the Brady Theater.

Seems like the best acoustic venues are decades old. Newer venues are larger, maybe more modern looking but often times downright bad acoustically.

Where is this theater located? Where I live there are a few older theaters that sound just like this one and they are beautifully crafted for acoustics. They really knew what they were doing when they built these older ones, didn't they?
