I will be dating myself here but I remember my mom listening to Amos and Andy on the radio while she ironed. I began to listen as well and their show was hilarious. Is there anyone else here that is old enough to remember?

I had to search the show on Google. I don't think there's anything similar on my local radio, which is unfortunate because it seems fun. The story captures the daily life moments, so it hits right on the spot.

This is the first I've heard of this show; I'm always up for good shows. Good thing it's available on the net, too. Thanks for this topic, Odie.

I've never heard of this show, but my parents remember watching it on TV when they were growing up. They mentioned that it started out as a radio show in the 30's. My mom even remembers there being dolls of the characters too.

Please don't do that.

Just how old are you? I've heard of the show, but it was before my time.

And no, I don't have the courage to tell you how much before my time.
