
Subject: Setting up a practice room
Posted by PianoGrrl on Thu, 29 Dec 2016 09:58:18 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Ok, like you might have guessed I play an instrument, but we're close enough to the neighbours' house that they are complaining about me practicing. I don't want to stop playing, and I play acoustic so headphones don't help. Is there anyway to deaden sounds, or cheaply soundproof a room so they don't have to hear it?

Subject: Re: Setting up a practice room
Posted by Odie on Thu, 29 Dec 2016 13:14:54 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I can't believe you have complaining neighbors. I would love to hear your piano music. That is unless you are playing all hours of the night. I did look up soundproofing materials and they can get quite expensive. What about foam panels? Have you looked into those? I wouldn't think they would be too expensive.

Subject: Re: Setting up a practice room
Posted by Gemmel on Thu, 29 Dec 2016 13:16:00 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

The best way to do it on a budget would be to use adhesive weather strips around your door to close that gap between the door and the wall.

Subject: Re: Setting up a practice room
Posted by PianoGrrl on Sun, 01 Jan 2017 14:23:49 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I don't think I am practicing unreasonably late, just an hour a night before seven, but the walls here seem to be paper thin.

Thanks for the tip about foam. I was looking at cork, but it costs a fortune. I've already tried bookcases and moving the piano away from the wall.

Subject: Re: Setting up a practice room
Posted by drake on Sun, 01 Jan 2017 22:49:36 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

How I wish I was your neighbor. I think you have neighbors who just love to pick a fight. Your best remedy is in finding an affordable way of soundproofing the room. Good luck with that!

Subject: Re: Setting up a practice room
Posted by Azuri on Tue, 03 Jan 2017 16:37:24 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I would talk to the apartment manager where you live. It sounds like your neighbor is being unreasonable if you're not playing unreasonably loud at an unreasonable hour. You pay money for that apartment so you deserve to live the life you want.

Just my 2 cents.

Subject: Re: Setting up a practice room
Posted by Ssal on Wed, 04 Jan 2017 20:42:52 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I don't think that the neighbors are being unreasonable. The same way she pays for her space, they pay for theirs, too. And invading it with noise is not very neighborly. I think that it's best just to find ways of soundproofing your room and avoid confrontations.
