Well I have the electronic skills of a dolphin. But the idea of powered speaks intrigues me. I see gainclones powering things like Discmans and so on. But how much power could be delivered via a soundcard connection direct from the computer? I don't think I know how to phrase a proper google search for this. However, Electronic Musician mag has reviews of powered speaks from time to time. PCs use powered speaks of some sort so I'm wondering if the dots can be connected.
