The 4 seconds are so between tracks on CD (obviously) are somehow ....different.Blacker is such a horrid metaphor and worse as a cliche.I find myself impatient for the next track, unable to anticipate it's commencement and feeling a sense of being disconnected from the machinery for that brief space.I think that's a major positive, that the Kit One is so accurate that when there's nothing there, there's less there, there! (to paraphrase one of the Literati) How about you?
