I've heard that the 300 series are less prone to humming, but as a first project I didn't know if it's be worth. But if I'm going to spend any money it ought to be on the iron. I've also heard that if you do the 6EM7 right it is a very, very nice sounding amp! So like a 300FX 275-0-275V, 150mA would be about right I think.Thanks Douglas!
