

---

Subject: Re: Tone arm shapes

Posted by Bill Martinelli on Thu, 29 Jul 2004 02:05:10 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

I understand the Linn is a very nice deck. Thanks for the lead to Mr Kistners pages. I will check them out. I did find some info on building a tonearm and have lost the place temporarily. The Dynavector 5 is nice isn't it? A little over the top for me right now. I have a Grado and a Sure cart. So far I like the Grado on the Empire arm a little better. The Grado has better bass production and is more dynamic sounding. The Sure is more neutral sounding and has a little more detail. Just some observations with a few 75.00 carts. It's a lot of fun and brings the relaxation level of listening to music to another level. Bill

---