Same here, as to the Moerch anyway. Just turned one down for 406.00, only because it had the heavy tonearm, so I would have to replace it, was missing a few odds and ends, and was the older one where the arm holder is a seperate piece requiring a hole drilled in the plinth, which might not be the best idea with a sprung table. also lost out on an auction for a DP 6...winning bid, just over 700 with my esnipe set a few bucks short. I already have a co polymer subchassis from Merrill/Scillia cut for a Moerch. I WILL FIND ONE YET!Russellc
