I stopped in at the local resale shop yesterday and found three albums worth grabbing. All three were just $1.00. Two had never been opened and the third was in great shape. I got an album of Rostrapovich on Cello doing Dvorak's Concerto in B Minor. Never been opened. That's pretty cool. I also got a copy of Madame Butterfly performed by the Rome Symphony Orchestra, directed by Domenico Savino. The third was a funny grab - it's a Christmas album with familiar songs performed by a bunch of familiars like Ella Fitzgerald, Frank Sinatra and Bing Crosby. For a buck, I couldn't pass it up.
