so i just got a numark ttx fusion, without the counterweight which i am waiting for in the mail. and i tried to work it without the counterweight after putting together the cartridge/ tone arm and all that jazz. but i am hearing loops on all the records i am using why is that? the needle is also moving back and forth more then i feel is common. maybe it is only the lack of a counterweight and proper allignment but i am not sure if i screwed the needle up when i put it together, though it looks all right, any suggestions
