True but then you had to transcribe the counter digits to real time. With this feature I would add all the times of the songs leaving out the last one. Then after they were all recorded whatever time was left I would find a song that fit exactly into that spot. No more 2 minute exit silence.