

---

Subject: Re: speakers in bathroom

Posted by Wayne Parham on Sun, 18 Jan 2004 20:56:35 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

If the speaker cone warps, it may cause the voice coil to rub. Length of time until you can expect to see damage depends on cone material, amount of humidity and duration of exposure. Some humidity is desirable, and if the length of drying time between high-humidity exposures is high, it might actually be a good thing. But if the cone paper begins to shrink or warp from these humidity cycles, then you have a problem.

---