Thanks for pointing these out. The biggest problem with all the non-mainstream offerings on the market is that you don't have an opportunity hear them unless someone you know has already bought one, or the manufacturer exhibits at an event like the GPAF. So I'm glad the folks from Iconic Audio will be exhibiting their Stonehenge speakers at the GPAF and wish David were going to be there too with his Audio Nirvana, PAudio, and other products. Too bad he's missing this opportunity - they probably are very good drivers too.
