Interesting; whats your take on the DIY/pro thing regarding your big gun Altecs and JBL's? I know you like them and most of their designs were done without the aid of computer modeling. See I would accept that if you have access to a lab and use the best available drivers; Scan-Speak/TAD etc with anechoic chamber results and such then as a diy'er you could turn a better design, but then it would cost you more than a pro built unit. Guys working out of their garage build really nice stuff that sounds good; but it ain't competing with the top shelf stuff.
