Definatly a worthwhile avenue to explore. The older drivers we used actually were pretty stiff, JBL d130's and Altec woofers. That of course is required for decent results. The thrust of past experiments in my opinion was to attempt to simplify as much as possible, the xover 1st order and baffle boards as narrow as possible. Linkwitz has done his homework thats for sure but the drivers he uses are pretty pricey and his system runs into some serious money.
