You know Charlie; thats right. Like they say about Supreme Court rulings; the petitioners are always the weakest part of the case. I would never had been exposed to the concept of using Air capacitors if it wasn't for that nit-wit. The real problem with forums is in the past 50 yrs. the concept of communicating through writing has virtually disappaered until recently with the popularity of the internet. No one has a well grounded skill at written communication anymore. That is why the SAT's now include the essay component; to address that situation.
