I'm sure I could have a better and more meaningful conversation about how a given speaker sounds with a musician than an engineer. Ya know, it may be just me, but I think I'd get greater joy listening to a speaker that a musician with no engineering background has "tweaked" to perfection than listening to a speaker that an engineer with no musical talent or experience has "tweaked" to his version of perfection. Of course, someone who is both musician and engineer may come up with the best one of all. Dave
