Subject: Re: Eighth-space = 9dB DI
Posted by Wayne Parham on Thu, 22 Dec 2005 22:29:26 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

By that argument, all DI increases from waveguides would be meaningless. A sound source radiating from the apex of a trihedral boundary is a CD source, one having of the most purely constant directivity you can find. It is quite literally a large waveguide with radiation angle defined by the walls.