

---

Subject: Re: System Improvement
Posted by dB on Wed, 05 Jul 2006 10:10:25 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Hi,I saw the acoustics products on the website and they seemed to me a little bit crude, and I doubt about the sub-hertz resonances. We know that "almost" all of that can be measured. I don't expect that from some of the products. There is also phycho-acoustics involved (or what one' believes). The Aeronautics background from the staff can be a plus and the development involved can be something of value. I expect to see some technical development from all of that. Also when I see or read about a product I like to know about the materials used in it's "confection", "special audiophile-grade cover" (what) does not seem to be the case in this duplex cover.Regards and good luck for the website if it is genuine and not a SCAM.
The "Aeroacoustics" phenomena

---