Subject: Re: Boomtoobz
Posted by lon on Tue, 23 Mar 2004 04:06:11 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Thanks for sticking around on this one. I made some progress inreading your theory pages... got distracted once... it's not likebook reading. Anyway, being pretty isolated socially from any other hobbyists I have no effective gauge of what I'm hearing. The first impression Ihave of making the toobz length nearly 10 ft overall is thateffective listening is put too far out. In other words, just likemy 8.5 ft straight pipe open at the front bottom, you have to getway back in order to appreciate the lower frequency reproduction...with considerable volume. The folded U-shape has given the most satisfying listeningexperience. other thing to try is going in the other direction: shorter.I will follow up with the link (when I find it) of another approach.It'd be good if all the tubes were archived in the same place butI guess not many are doing this kind of building.