
Subject: Re: Need Help understanding Fostex Line.
Posted by Wayne Parham on Fri, 16 Apr 2004 21:43:26 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Hi Terry, You make backloaded horns I think, right? Do you make Voigt pipes, transmission lines, tapered pipes and the likes too? I seem to remember seeing some of your systems that have backloaded horns and some that were tapered pipes. Is that right? Assuming that's the case, what are your favorite drivers? Even if it isn't the case, what drivers do you like best and in what kinds of cabinets? Do you like a particular Fostex model? Or do you prefer one of the Lowthers? And finally, what sort of tuning methods do you employ? I mean, I'm just asking what your style is. I've seen your cabinets, and they're quite nice. I always assumed that was your specialty, good cabinetry. But I'm curious as to your design philosophies. By the way, check out the Craftsmen forum too. Lots of really great artists hang out there. Some wonderful cabinetmakers, that bunch! All the best, Wayne
