Subject: Sprinkling posts... Posted by robertG on Thu, 15 Jul 2004 18:49:06 GMT View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Some of you may have read some version of this post on other forums so please disregard BUTfor those who did not:I recently experienced a stunning increase in sound quality from my fully broken in Fostex FE168EZ, due to very high humidity (between 70 and 80%). Did anyone experience same thing? How do you explain?I would love to keep this "sound" forever if I could find a way. Of course, I could sell the house and get myself a couple pairs of drivers and experience with various doping agents to see the effect...

```
Page 1 of 1 ---- Generated from AudioRoundTable.com
```