Hello and glad you joined us here,Linux isn't at the point and click stage even as they mighttell you or have you believe.It's like I picked up where I left off with Unix in 1996.More code than I could deal with then and there's still a lotof it. I just don't want to be on the Microsoft boat anymore.It's a big help to have broadband since Linux is being updatedall the time.I made the switch to bb when the price dropped close to where dialupis for me.I believe the true advantages are still in the future for Linux. For that future I've started to learn it now.
