Hi Peter, I made a pair of corner surrounds using Fostex 167's. The boxes are about 1 cu ft. When used as mains, they don't sound 1/2 as bad as long as the loudness is turned on. Without it, they are a little wimpy for the fairly big room. The ports in the back into the corners does make a difference (more bass), so I can't say how they'd be in a regular ported box. I also made a pair of TQWT's with Fostex 207's. Now those things make some real bass. It's not super clear necessarily, but there's lots of it. Chris
