"the hobby is some sort of an escape from whateveris going on in relationships"For me, my hobbies are an escape from the mundane day-to-days of my job. If I had to define myself solely by my day job, I'd shoot myself. One thing I hate about meeting new people is when they ask "what do you do?" and expects an answer based on your job. Next time someone asks me that question, I going to answer "husband, dog owner, photography student and aspiring cabinet maker."Gar.
