Check out the Prosound Shootout. It isn't as big an issue as some of the world events going on, but I think it's very interesting as far as audio is concerned. Right now, the discussions are primarily behind the scenes, writing a test plan and setting up things. But I think we're all about ready to take the discussions public, so people can see what we're all doing and then obviously after the show, to analyze the data and understand what each product provides. So watch the Prosound Speakers forum for details as things progress.
