Like all of you, I agonise over whether I wuill hear this or that bat's wings flutter through my stereo. Just like I always have. For 30 years.The sad truth is that I constantly ask people to repeat the question or ask a third party what was said. My mid-range hearing is shot!Speakerman was over not long ago and commented on how the room was distorting the mid-range. All I could say was "really?"I have always been and remain extremely sensitive to higher frequencies. As we age our stereos must seem weirder and weirder to younger ears.
