Subject: Re: Really ???
Posted by Bill Fitzmaurice on Fri, 06 Aug 2004 19:52:44 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

No, crossfiring doesn't alter the fact that differing pathlengths lead to phase anomalies. Crossfiring is useful in broadening horizontal dispersion but once you get to a half-wavelength spacing phase cancellation will occur.