Hello and Thank You for your Reply. As far as it working? The cord is old and cracking, and Im afraid to plug it in :) But as far as all those tubes and what not, none are broke and all wires seem to be all connected in the right spots. It has a few scratches, small chip in it, but there is no doubt they are fixable. I talked to an elderly women this summer who was a frequent visitor to the building when she was young and she said it was still working just great in the 50's as the town used to hold dances on Saturday Night for the younger people in the building then. I will try to take a picture of it later today and post it as soon as I can. I have tried to research it and can't seem to find anything on it. I would like to have some idea for insurance purposes. Again, Thank You very much for your time. Wendy
