Subject: Zenith 12S471 repo parts source needed.
Posted by Ed White on Tue, 30 May 2006 06:08:43 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Lucky me...I stopped at a rummage sale by my house, and they didn't have much...the guy was trying to get rid of his old PIANO, and I wasn't biting. He asked what I was looking for. Of course, I said "If you had radios I'd be interested!" He said he had an old wood one in the back of the garage...and voila...there sat a very restorable, intact (mostly) Zenith 12S471. I personally think, to my eyes, is one of the most beautiful Zeniths ever made. 40 bucks, and a few minutes later, it was home in my shop. Almost complete, except for the main tuning knob assembly by the shutter lever. (that is still there) and the glass and center decorative tuning needle cover. I NEED these parts, anybody know of a source for reproduction knobs? Oh yeah, one of the tuning pushbuttons is gone, too. Thanks! Ed White