Thanks for all this information and links! Yes - I am tempted to build my own crystal radio from scratch - just for the fun of it. It's a pity they're not making the germanium crystal diodes any more... I guess they're just too expensive to produce, and there is not the demand. Amazing that the POW's built crystal radios - I suppose it made perfect sense, then they could find out what was going on. It's amazing that you can knock a radio together with just a few simple bits and pieces.
