Does anybody know how to stop the AIWA CX-NMT240 surround sound system from automatically dozing off every few minutes? The "Jogger" dial gives NO such option (what genius thought of this insane feature?). The accompanying manual (for model NSX-MT241) gives the stepS how to turn ON "econo-mode"; but the one step given to disable the energy saving feature fails. AIWA is a giant company with no support forum at its site and the company's manuals are an insult. I'll NEVER buy another AIWA product.By some fluke, I had the feature turned off once; and it ran for a whole movie, even at low volume. But I accidentally pressed some button on the remote control and can't reverse it. Does anybody know the secret to stopping this #$&!?! thing from shutting down, presumable to save a penny every month?
