Subject: Rare Fender Solid State Twin Reverb (1966-71)
Posted by Omar on Thu, 08 Sep 2005 16:33:43 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Just got one of these for really cheap (couple hundred). It's a 100W 2 x 12" twin reverb with a vibrato channel. Very weird-looking: vertical (as opposed to customary side-by-side, horizontal layout), odd silverface-ish plate with "Solid State" in red letters, no master volume (instead it has settings for "pop," "normal," and "C&W") or gain, just treble and bass. It's loud and has the typically dry, none-too-exciting tone associated with solid state amps, but man, I can't get over how strange this amp looks. I have never heard anyone talk about this series amp at all. Fender seems to have disowned it completely, as it is not in their archives at all! Anyone have any information about it? Manuals? Other owners of this amp? Anyone?