Myself, I'd use a vintage alnico 15 incher in a box of ample size. Woofers with cakemagnets don't sound as good unless they have copper in the pole piece, then they'regood too, some say better. Put your money in a good woofer, that's the most importantthing for clean, tight bass. The cabinet is important too, but it all starts withthe woofer.You might write to Bill Fitzmaurice, he seems very knowledgable and probably has plansfor a bass rig, maybe a DR15. You'll find him here and at www.billfitzmaurice.com.Rgs,Kevin
