Cool, ill look foward to seeing that, ive orderd a spl meter and im assuming if play a test tone cd with 1/3 octave interval tones and take mesurements with the meter ill have a fairly accurate graph. I thought boosting the mid on the graphic eq gave you less headroom on the amp? As its turning the signal up the mids would clip more easyly, so a 6db boost would mean 6db less head room on the amp, meaning you could only give the speakers 1/4 of the power you could otherwise. Im not 100% sure on this though, ive asked bill over on his forum.
