I absolutely fell in love with the Panasonic 42 inch plasma television at the Vault. I was contracted to do the sound and help setup the video gear too, and they purchased this television, which we installed on a wall near the bar. Several smaller video monitors were placed around the club and a large projection television above the dance floor, all run from a bank of tuners in the A/V room in back. It's a pretty neat install and a cool club. But man, that plasma TV was really something. I have that TV on my Christmas list, so now I've gotta try to be good so Santa will bring me one.
