Front Projectors are coming down in price. I plan to get one eventually. Besides funds, the only thing holding it up is possible plans to move. Don't want to mount a projector and set up a room and then take it all apart. I dropped cable tv and now have an over the air HDTV receiver, not yet hooked up due to the need to mount a large antenna on the roof, snow, and again possible moving plans. Cable has Discovery and History, but I should be able to receive four PBS stations (which has always been my favorite) as well as the networks, which I would probably not watch except for important news breaks or DeNiro.
